JD Farms Specialty Turkey

The Froese family invites people to visit the JD Farms bistro and store in Langley, at the corner of 248th Street and 52nd Avenue.

There, folks will find an assortment of turkeys and turkey products including prepared meals, sausages, and many other delights to satisfy the tastebuds.

JD Farms makes it easy to make turkey a part of anyone's regular meals.

At the JD Farms bistro and store, people can also purchase fresh deli meats, salads, cooked turkey parts, and their own freshly made organic bread and buns.

There are also lots of great complements to complete a turkey meal including sauces, spice mixes, pastas, soup mixes, cheeses, and crackers.

Locally sourced items such as Krause Berry Farms pies and jams, Cranberry Naturally's cranberry sauces, and BC Buzz honey can also be found on the shelves.

JD Farms is proud to carry locally made products.

Turkeys raised under the JD Farms Specialty Turkey certification are fed a natural diet of non-GMO grains, vitamins, and minerals, plus they're raised without antibiotics or animal by-products.

The turkeys live in spacious, well-ventilated barns with free access to fresh water and a constant supply of fresh feed. Special care and diet bring about the highest quality and exceptional flavour.

Fresh JD Farms Specialty Turkeys are available for Easter, Thanksgiving, U.S. Thanksgiving, and Christmas – with frozen turkeys available year-round.

There is no need to pre-order your turkey at JD Farms, but people should stop by early to ensure a good selection.

A fresh turkey purchased at JD Farms will remain fresh in the refrigerator for up to four days.

Krause Berry Farms & Estate Winery

It started small when Alf Krause planted one acre of strawberries in 1974.

Today, Krause Berry Farms & Estate Winery has expanded to more than 200 acres, growing and producing some of the Fraser Valley's best berries and vegetables.

It's owned and operated by Alf & Sandee Krause, whose commitment to ethical and sustainable farming has resulted in loyal guests spreading the word and returning year after year.

The abundance of delicious fresh berries and vegetables, combined with Sandee's creativity and passion for baking, led to the development of their ever-expanding line of farm-made products available in their market, bakery, fudgery, creamery and porch.

Today the on-site farm harvest kitchen produces more than 100 products grown from the above. The newest being their Krause Berry Farms wines!

Come saddle up in their estate winery for a taste of the old west and their berry wines.

Their mission statement is to grow the best quality food, and encourage guests to participate in their food experience.

The Krause Berry family strives to do this by integrating new growing techniques with traditional methods, to use the whole green farming approach, along with implementing IPM (integrated pest management) on the berry farm.

They are willing to try new technology that both enhances the quality of the products they grow, while protecting our environment.

Their farm and field workers are working together to provide a clean, safe, and fun environment at their family owned and operated farm.

They commit to incorporating the fullness of integrity, fairness, fun and hard work into all they do. They are continually looking for, and incorporating new ideas to enhance and involve the community.

They accept the social responsibilities inherent to being part of an agriculture industry, community, and world larger than themselves.
